Three Stars
For we know too well that

For we knew too well that we could not

Smote you on the poo-poo Because of your might and main. But nevertheless, we're sure, we'll miss

Your great round, engaging smile So we close with a fervent wish

That more stars will be added to The Three that you proudly possess.

If flying is your choice of careers, or a useful addition to another career, you'll be interested in professional college flight training. At Sheldon Jackson College in Sitka there is a complete flight curriculum, planned so that a student receives college credit for his flying along with his other subjects. In just two years he can have both a commercial pilot's license and an Associate in Science degree.

Students study on the 354-acre campus of Alaska's longest established educational institution, enjoying small classes averaging six students, receiving personal attention and counseling, and of course, individualized flight instruction from a veteran Alaskan charter pilot. Course credit is transferable to other colleges since SJC is fully accredited. is fully accredited.

Training is in the fully equiped, late model Cessna 172 shown above and a Cessna 150 on wheels operating from the 5,000 foot, paved and lighted Sitka Airport with ILS. Special attention is given to safety in Alaska flying and Alaska weather.

For the young man or women who wants to learn to fly professionally, a college flight training program is ideal. Progress is fast; many students receive their private licenses at the end of their first semester. And the satisfaction. well, that could be you in the picture above.
