

Upward Bound Gives 'UBBOPPers' Future

The only Upward Bound Program in a prison is at the Oregon State Penitentiary, in Salem.

Idea for the unusual program came from Tom Gaddis, author of "The Birdman of Alcatraz," and an expert in penology. He chose the Oregon penitentiary because of "the progressive attitude toward penology" being taken in the State.

There are 50 men in the program at the prison, and 14 women involved in a related program in the woman's section of the penitentiary. Enthusiasm of the UBBOPPERS, as they call themselves, is obvious.

"It's the greatest!" one said. "All my life I've had nothing to look forward to," said another. "Now, all of a sudden, I've got a future." UBBOPPERS have been assured by college officials that their record will not stand in their way. "It's likely we won't even know you have served time," one told them.

First UBBOPPER from the penitentiary will enroll in college this fall. About eight more are expected to finish their sentences and enroll in college in the coming year.

Forestry . . .

(Continued from Page 1)

and when and where it should be held."

Peratrovich said that seven weeks have expired since that meeting and still there was no word of any kind received.

The WCDA feels the hearing is very necessary in order to have a better understanding of the policies now in use by the Forest Service such as demonstrated by the recent Shoal Cove sale where the Panhandle Logging Co., for the second time purchased a major sale outbidding experienced legitimate timber operators who had facilities to handle the timber themselves.

"The West Coast Development Association feels that such a sale is purchased purely for speculation in as much as the Panhandle Logging Co. does not have the necessary facilities to harvest the timber for market," said Frank Peratrovich.

"Our thinking in regard to the urgent need for this public hearing," continued Peratrovich, "is additionally substantiated by the recent request by the management of the presently entrenched

Judge Nora Guinn . . .

(Continued from page 1)

continued her medical help over a large area.

The family returned to Bethel in the early fifties. Judge Guinn then served terms in the Bethel city council. She was also active in 4-H work. Around this time, she served as assistant U. S. Commissioner for two years prior to Alaska statehood.

She was later appointed Deputy Magistrate for the Bethel district and served in this position until her appointment to the judgeship this month.

Judge Nora Guinn has gained a unique reputation in the manner she conducted her court during the past eight years.

Speaking fluently the several dialects of the Kuskokwim, Yukon and Nunivak Island areas, she frequently conducts entire court sessions in the language of her people.

Her work does not end with the dispensing of a fine or a sentence:

"What can we do to prevent a recurrence? What do we need in the form of training or education? Where can we help?"

These are questions she asks city, state and federal officials in her efforts to improve legal services for her people.

Judge Guinn has deep interest in the youth of the Southwest area. Working closely with the Youth and

J. B.—The powerful drama of Job of modern times is being rehearsed at the University of Alaska's Drama Workshop. The Pulitzer Prize-winning play will be presented on October 27 at the Schaible Auditorium. From left to right, Carol Dart as Sarah; Paul Quist as J. B.; and Robin Fowler, director of the play.

—Photo by FRANK B. SIPES

J. B. - Powerful Drama to Be Seen at U of A Oct. 27-28-29

The University Drama Workshop is now in the final stages of their preparations for their production of J. B., the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama by Archibald MacLeish.

The rehearsals are now taking place under the direction of Robin Fowler for the opening at the Schaible Auditorium at the University Friday, the 27th of October.

J. B. is a reconstruction of the story of Job for our times and speaks of human suffering, of brutality and degradation. It manages somehow, like the original biblical version, to transcend its material and becomes an uplifting, ennobling experience.

More than this, the play explores the timely question of man's and God's inhumanity to man. J. B. has been acclaimed as "One of the lasting achievements of art and mind in our time."

Tickets for the production—October 27, 28, 29, and November 3, 4, 5, — are on sale now at the University Bookstore and at several locations around town.

The Drama Workshop hopes you will come and see, and enjoy an evening with J. B.

Sheefish Egg Experiment Underway

For the first time in North America sheefish eggs have been taken for experimental hatching purposes, reports George Van Wyhe, Interior Region-Sport Fish Supervisor of the Alaska Department of Fish and Game.

The eggs, 150,000 in number, were taken by Sport Fish Biologists last week from the Koyukuk River at Hughes and are now being incubated at the Eagle River Hatchery near Anchorage.

According to Van Wyhe, the

Gov. Creates . . .

(Continued from page 1)

Executive of employment and unemployment problems in the rural areas of the state and to look into ways of improving the native job situation.

Gov. Hickel appointed the following men to the commission: Harry Carter, Kodiak; Rep. Bill Hensley, Kotzebue; Rep. Carl Moses, Unalaska on the Aleutian Chain; Jerry Crow, Barrow; Richard Frank, Minto and Fairbanks; Jeff David, Haines; Harvey Samuelson, Bethel; Jerome Trigg, Nome; George Attla, Huslia; and Howard Rock, Fairbanks.

The Anchorage meeting drew eleven speakers from various state and federal agencies as well as labor union officials.

Bob Arnold of the Federal Field Committee for Alaska spoke on that committee's report, the Alaska Natives and Federal Hire.

George Attla was not able to attend the first part of the meeting in Anchorage due to transportation problems from his home village of Huslia.

sheefish, or inconnu, often referred to as the "fresh-water tarpon," is actually the largest member of the whitefish family and is found only in the arctic and sub-arctic regions of North America and Russia.

What Saith the Scriptures?

"Whereas ye know: not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? It is even a vapour, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away" (James 4:14).

Today your feet stand on Tomorrow's sinking sand. Tomorrow the footprints remain, but you are gone! Into eternity.

"For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Mark 8:36, 37).

"For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through Him might be saved" (John 3:17).

"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life but the wrath of God abideth on him" (John 3:36).

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isaiah 1:18).

"The blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 John 1:7).

L.T. Crook, Fairbanks, Alaska