

Earl Warrer, Jr. to Attend Mental Health Conference

Judge Earl Warren Jr. of the Municipal Court of Sacramento, Calif., will arrive in Anchorage for Alaska's first State Mental Health Planning Conference, Nov. 28-30, at the Alaska Methodist University auditorium, according to Dr. Helen H. Beirne, president of the Alaska Mental Health Association.

Judge Warren has worked actively for the establishment of increased mental health services for many years. He has served as president of the Sacramento Area Mental Health Association, and as a regional vice president and member of the board of the national association.

Further, Judge Warren has been a forceful spokesman for community mental health programs on important bodies, Dr.

Beirne said. He is a member of the Governor's Advisory Board on Mental Health (California), a commissioner of the Sacramento City Planning Commission, a member of the Citizens' Advisory Committee to the Workable Program (Sacramento), among others.

Prior to his appointment to the Bench, Judge Warren practiced law in Sacramento and was an instructor in law at Sacramento State College.

Judge Warren, a native Californian, attended the University of California and received his LL.B. degree at Berkeley.

Friday, Nov. 28, Judge Warren will speak at the Captain Cook Hotel. A no-host cocktail precedes the dinner at 8 p.m.

JUDGE EARL WARREN, JR.

Retires Then Job— Noel Wright Award

At a general staff meeting this week, Agency Superintendent Wallace O. Craig conferred upon Mr. Wright H. Noel The Department of the Interior's Honor Award for Commendable Service.

The award reads in part "... Upon retirement after thirty years of service with the Bureau of Indian Affairs." "... In recognition of his devoted service with the Indian and Eskimo people and to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Mr. Wright Noel is granted the Department of Interior Commendable Service Award." Mr. and Mrs. Noel will be leaving this week for California where Mr. Noel has accepted a position as Director, Allied Welding Schools, Inc., at Berkeley.

Mr. Noel will continue to be in contact with Indian people as the Bureau of Indian Affairs utilizes this training facility in their Adult Vocational Training Program in Oakland.

UA Visitation Team

A program on the University of Alaska presented at Nome, Nenana, and Covenant High Schools during the week of Nov. 10 by a university faculty member and two students.

Dr. William J. Loyens, an associate professor of anthropology at the University of Alaska, led the visitation team. Loyens was born in Belgium, but came to the United States in 1950.

The student members of the team were Colleen Herning, a junior journalism major and Harold Napoleon, a sophomore history major. Miss Herning, who graduated from Lathrop High School in Fairbanks, was elected to SPURS, a sophomore women's honorary organization. She is also active in dormitory government and is a reporter for the student newspaper.

Napoleon, who graduated from St. Mary's High School, is an officer in Alpha Phi Omega, a service fraternity. He was also president of his pledge class.

The representatives presented an informative program about the university and showed slides of the campus. They took along brochures about the university and its programs to distribute at each high school. They met with small groups and interested students to discuss specific programs.

This is the third year the university has sent out visitation teams to Alaskan high schools. This year eight faculty members and 19 students are participating. They visited 33 Alaskan High Schools with additional trips to Chemawa High School in Salem, Ore. and Whitehorse High School in British Columbia.
