

CAP STATE BOARD ATTENDS BUSY MEETING

Kodiak Head Start Program -

15 Preschoolers Given Field Excursions in the Area

The Kodiak Head Start program operated over the summer, providing educational and interesting days for the 15 children enrolled.

Headed by Evelyn Heflin, the staff took the preschoolers on a number of field excursions in the area.

Several trips were made to see the fire house, inspect the fire engine, and talk to the firemen on duty. They also visited the Kodiak boat harbor to watch the salmon coming up the strait.

The Parents Advisory Committee were kept busy this summer hosting fund raising activities such as baked goods sales and a Tupperware party.

The profits are used to send Head Start parents to conferences in Anchorage or for needs in the Center.

Other members of the Kodiak Head Start staff include Janice Bradish, Teacher-Aide; Melinda Mutch, cook; and Joyal Pelekai, janitor.

PROSPECTIVE FISHERMEN — Apparently gauging the run, these Kodiak children watch salmon coming up the strait this past summer. They are under the watchful eyes of a teacher-aid from the local Head Start program which sponsored field trips in the area.

The RurAL CAP State Board of Directors held its annual meeting at Wildwood on September 20-22, chaired by President Elmer Armstrong of Kotzebue.

The busy three-day agenda included approving the 1973 work program and a training grant for the agency.

The directors also approved the Alaska Legal Services grant application and a Nutritional Old Age grant presented by the Kodiak Area Community Development Corporation.

In his report to the board, Executive Director John Shively said he believed the theme of this annual meeting should be "RurAL CAP and the Future."

In reviewing some of the agency's programs, such as the regional corporations, Head Start, Alcoholism, the Village Equipment Mobilization Program (VEMP), and the Hot Breakfast program, he emphasized that the success of these operations has been the result of RurAL CAP's philosophy, of having hired and trained local people and giving local control to the programs.

Looking to the future, the director commented that as long as there are low income people in rural Alaska, RurAL CAP can perform functions that are relevant to their needs.

In closing, Mr. Shively said that for personal reasons, he was submitting his resignation, to be effective after the next board meeting.

The board discussed possible changes for RurAL CAP, its relationship with the Office of Economic Opportunity and also with other agencies.

In other action, the board endorsed the Citizens' Participation Program of Juneau and amended the Articles and By-laws of the corporation.

Guest speakers were Don Wright, President of the Alaska Federation of Natives; Mike Jones, Director of the State Economic Opportunity Office; and Jack Hayward, Superintendent of the Kenai School System.

Election of officers returned Elmer Armstrong as president of the 24-member board for another year. Allen Panamaroff from Kodiak was elected Vice President and Elen Lang from Sitka was re-elected Secretary-Treasurer.

The time and place of the next board meeting will be set by the executive committee.

Commissioner Max Brewer Orders Fairbanks Dump Closed

JUNEAU -- Environmental Conservation Commissioner Max Brewer ordered city officials to close the Fairbanks dump at noon on Friday, September 29.

In a letter sent to Fairbanks officials, Brewer said that operation of the dump "has been grossly deficient" and itemized the reasons which led him to close the dump operation.

Calling the dump "a blight on the community" and a "disgrace on the reputation of the State," Brewer said investigations by his staff showed that refuse was scattered in an uncontrolled manner and "left uncovered for many days, often weeks at a time."

He said that garbage was often dumped into trenches which were dug to bury refuse and this practice led to pollution of the ground water of the area.

Brewer said the Fairbanks dump was a "harborage for rats" and a "breeding ground for flies, mosquitoes and other obnoxious disease vectors" which endangered the health of the residents of the area.

"I feel that Fairbanks officials have had ample opportunity to look into the problem and come up with viable solutions. It seems to me that the time has come for action to be taken and sidestepping around the problem to cease," Brewer said.

Labeling his action as a move to solve one of the state's most serious environmental problems, Brewer said that city officials had several alternatives to explore with the closure of the dump.

At least one of these alternatives could be available on very short notice according to information received by the department.

If corrective action is not taken immediately, Brewer said that the onset of cold weather could result in "the present deplorable condition existing and further deteriorating until next summer."

Brewer said his department is ready to work with Fairbanks officials to solve the city's solid waste disposal problem.

"We have staff people with expertise in this area and they will do all they can to help the city in any way possible," he said.
