Alaska Federation of Natives-Alaska State Housing Authority-AFN-ASHA Join Resources to Develop Native Housing Program in Alaska

Last year, by Executive Order, President Nixon created a new national Indian Housing program. Alaska's share of the program for fiscal year 1971 is 1200 units.

Further allocations will be announced for the succeeding four years and the total allocation for the five year program could reach as high as 8,000

Besides housing, the new pro-gram will include roads, water

gram will include roads, water and sewer, community centers and perhaps other facilities. As AFN understands the pro-gram, it will allow considerable flexibility in program and design in carrying out its intention of providing a vehicle for the deve-lopment of housing and subsi-diary facilities for all of the native people in need of better housing. housing.

development of the Indian Housing Program now rests jointly with the Alaska Federation of Natives and Alaska State Hou-sing Authority (ASHA). According to the Memoran-dum of Understanding between these two groups, AFN will take a major role in planning, choo-sing villages, and design.

As part of its survey func-tions, AFN will select villages, determine the number of units needed in each village and select unit sites; ascertain the suitability of each site; and provide ASHA with the facts needed to prepare fund applications.

Together, the two groups will prepare these applications. AFN will also contract design drawings for individual units and facilities; arrange acquisition of title to necessary land, arrange for the preparation of bid documents and review bid proposals and the selection of contract awards

In general, AFN's role will be as the developer. The Indian Housing Program is a self determination program and AFN wishes to have intensive involvement in the program. We anti-cipate that our involvement and responsibilities will grow as the program progresses.

To date, AFN has selected nineteen villages to include in the first year housing program. These villages are Barrow, Kotzebue, Nome, Dillingham, Fort Yukon, Togiak, St. Mary's, Sa-voonga, Gambell, Kipnuk, Quin-hagak, Emmonak, Hooper Bay, Noorvik, Sand Point, Teller, Kenai, Unalakleet and Yakutat. The selection procedures

The selection procedure was rather simple. First, we listed all villages in Alaska with Native populations of 300 or more.

Sizeable cities (Anchorage, Juneau, Fairbanks, Ketchikan, etc.) were deleted from the list due to the complex land owner-ship problems which would be expected and to give emphasis to rural communities at this time

Next, villages which have al-ready received substantial hou-sing assistance through ASHA ready received automatical straight and straight and straight and or BIA programs were stricken from the list. Then, villages with any obvious problems which would seriously complicate planning, such as serious flood plain conditions, were eliminated.

By these methods, we com-

By these methods, we com-

By these methods, we com-prised a basic list of 15 villages. To this we added villages which appealed to AFN with special requests for housing assistance. These were Kenai and Teller. Yakutat was added to the list because a considerable amount of planning has already occured there for housing and ASHA indicated that they will not develop housing for Yakutat not develop housing for Yakutat in Fiscal Year 1971 after all.

Unalakleet was added for still another reason. In spite of recent BIA and ASNA housing construction activity, there remains a large market/demand for more housing there. for more housing there.

Future village selection criteria will include the following: village populations, housing needs, status of water and sewer plans and facilities, land title status, flood plain infor-mation and whether or not local matton and whether or not local building materials will be uti-lized. We will also take into account project plans of other agencies which should affect the ning of village selections. So far, Seattle HUD office has approved programs in eleven villages. These are Kotzebue (100 units), Barrow (100), Tel-ler (30) Noorvik (20), Yakutat (20), Dillingham (50), Fort Yu-kon (40), Kenai (35), Gambell (25), Savoonga (25), and Unala-kleet (20).

As soon as a program in a village is approved AFN Field Planners, along with technicians from HUD and PHA, begin making on-site selection visits. Each village must assist in the selection of a site or sites on which the houses are to be
