any individual who comes in to conduct ANY type of healing workshops about who they are, where they come from, where and how they learned their knowledge, the name or names of their teachers and how to contact them to substantiate their credibility. This is important even though this person may be a Native person, as there are many offering services who do not have the traditional teachings or qualifications to do healing work. Unfortunately, some Natives are marketing themselves as "healers" for the recognition, status, popularity, money it may bring to the individual, instead of as a result of proper training, skill and right intent. What is not realized is they could harm people more than help them.

Apanugpak stared into a wooden bowl half filled with water. Inside he saw a reflection of the square hole of the Kasgik above. His mind drifted back to the time he spent with his uncle, a holy man, who spoke these words, "Ellam Yua breathed on the soil and the rocks and gave them life. Ever since that time, ever living thing on Mother Earth inherited the power to give life. This power comes in the form of a light found in ourselves, in the four legged, the finned, the winged, the blade of grass and even the water. This light will always connect us to Ellam Yua and all his creations. It is the only thing we need."
