

22nd annual Alaska press club competition

Entries have begun arriving for the 22nd Annual Alaska Press Club awards competition, the only statewide contest open to every facet of media in the State of Alaska.

The deadline for entries in this year's Press Club competition was midnight, March 1. The awards banquet to announce the winners is scheduled for May 20 at the Captain Cook Hotel in Anchorage.

Judges for this year's competition are the University of Southern California Journalism Department for print entries, including newspapers and other publications; Loyola University's Communications Arts Department for radio and television entries; National Geographic Magazine for photography; the San Diego Advertising Club for Advertising and Public Relations entries; and the San Diego Chapter of the Information Film Producers of America for cinematography.

Capping the awards will be that for Public Service, which will be judged by a panel of distinguished Alaskans. Certificates will be awarded to winners in all categories, with the exception of the Public Service Award, which will be honored with an engraved trophy.

Competition rules stipulate all entrants must live in Alaska or have lived in Alaska during the calendar year. However, entrants need not be members of the Alaska Press Club.

All entries must be original work substantially accomplished by eligible entrants and published or broadcast in Alaska in the calendar year 1975.

For further information concerning the competition, prospective entrants are urged to contact one of the following members of the awards committee: Cynthia Riebin of the University of Alaska-Anchorage; Bill Blessington, Anchorage School District; Bert Tarrant, Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Company; and Kathy Kelly of Murray, Kraft & Rocky—advertising and public relations firm.

The committee is chaired by Blessington and working under the over-all guidance of Tom Gibboney, Press Club president and managing editor of the Anchorage Daily News.

Entries should be mailed prior to the deadline in care of P.O. Box 979, Anchorage, Alaska, 99510. An entry fee of $5 per entry ($10 for video tapes) will be assessed.

Categories for entry include:

Gov. appoints Lemke to Board of Regents

Governor Jay Hammond has appointed Bruce Lemke as the student member of the University of Alaska Board of Regents.

The new regent was raised in Sitka and has worked and lived in Juneau and Ketchikan. He now lives in Anchorage where he is enrolled in the electronic technology program at the University of Alaska, Anchorage.

Lemke, 33, is single. He earned a Bachelor of Science degree in forest management from Humboldt State College in 1968. He worked in logging in British Columbia and Sitka until 1967, when he began a working trip around the world which lasted until 1971, when he returned to Sitka.

Hammond had recently personally interviewed the six candidates nominated from university campuses to the student regent position. The Governor said, "Bruce has a broad background which will assist him in his role as a representative of the students on the Board of Regents."

Alaska Statutes require the appointment of at least one member of the Board of Regents from a list of students submitted to the Governor from each campus site of the University of Alaska after an election is held at each campus site.

The appointment is for a two-year term.
